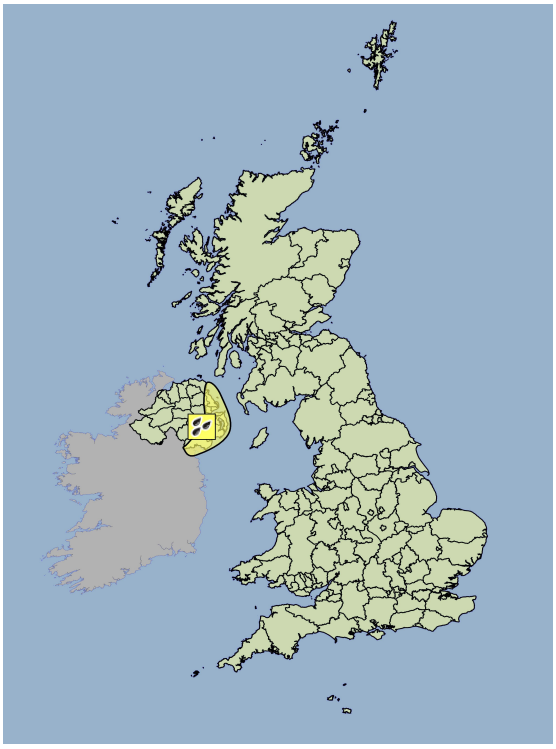
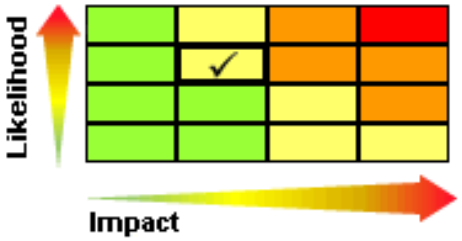
National Severe Weather Warning Service





CANCELLED

Chief Forecasters Assessment
A frontal zone remains slow-moving close to Northern Ireland on Thursday and during early Friday. Rainfall along the front will become heavier and persistent again for several hours from late evening.

There is now increased confidence that the heaviest rain will fall offshore to the east, though there is still a chance of 10-20mm of rain falling across some areas close to the east coast, including the Belfast areas, which might cause some localised flooding.

The Met Office have issued a Yellow Warning of Rain

Valid from 22:00 on Thu, 03rd Apr 2014 until 03:00 on Fri, 04th Apr 2014

Heavy rain will return to some eastern parts of Northern Ireland later on Thursday evening, eventually clearing during the early hours of Friday morning.

The public should be aware of the potential for localised surface water flooding.
